NU research featured at Expo

The quality of Niagara University undergraduate research was recognized when 10 students in the College of Arts and Sciences were selected to participate in the inaugural Independent Sector Undergraduate Research Exposition sponsored by the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities. The students displayed their research posters at the Legislative Office Building in Albany on Jan. 22.

The one-day event brought together college students, faculty and New York state legislators to showcase the high-quality undergraduate research being undertaken by independent colleges and universities throughout the state. In all, 70 student research teams from 27 campuses were chosen to participate in the event.

“One of our major goals in the College of Arts and Sciences is to support and encourage faculty-student research,” noted Nancy McGlen, dean of the college. “These research projects span a large number of fields and showcase the kind of interesting research that’s going on at Niagara.”

In research performed through the university’s Academic Center for Integrated Sciences and funded by the New York state Gen*NY*sis program, senior biology major Christopher Greene of Niagara Falls, and junior biochemistry majors Megan Gombert of Youngstown and Cara Lucas of Penn Yan studied the genes involved in coronary artery disease, the most prevalent illness in Niagara County. Working with Dr. Robert Greene, chair of the biology department; Dr. Deborah Leonard, senior scientist and research laboratory technician; and Dr. Michael Merhige of Niagara Falls Memorial Medical Center, they investigated gene expression as measured by PET-MPI (positron emission tomography myocardial perfusion imaging). The group found that there’s a connection between the way these genes are expressed and individuals’ risk of getting the disease. This information may lead to the development of a simple blood test to detect the likelihood of getting coronary artery disease so that preventative steps can be taken.

While the benefits of this research could reach around the globe, the impetus was close to home. “Niagara County patients are the reason we’re doing the study,” said Christopher Greene. He added that the expo gave the students “a chance to show the regional statewide community that NU is involved in cutting-edge research and working with other institutions toward a common goal.”

Another ACIS-sponsored research project, performed by Jeffrey St. Denis of Niagara Falls, a senior majoring in biology and chemistry, and Mallory van Dongen of Lewiston, a junior chemistry major, involved the development of anti-bacterial agents. These molecules could be used to preserve food, to coat surfaces to prevent the spread of germs, and to combat bioterrorism. The two students have been working on this project with Dr. Ronny Priefer, assistant professor of chemistry; Dr. Mary McCourt, chair of the chemistry department; and Dr. Walter Steiner, assistant professor of biology, for nearly two years. Priefer noted that this endeavor was an interdisciplinary one, drawing from medicinal chemistry, microbiology, organic chemistry, computational chemistry, and biochemistry. He
Dr. Debra Colley, dean of the College of Education, has been elected to a three-year term on the board of directors for the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education. AACTE is the primary national association of higher education that is dedicated to ensuring the highest quality preparation and continuing professional development for teachers and school leaders. The nearly 800 institutions holding membership in AACTE include private, state and municipal colleges and universities. Collectively, the AACTE membership prepares more than two-thirds of the new teachers entering schools each year.

Dr. Zdenka Gredel-Manuele, professor of history and chair of the department of history, presented a paper on Germany’s role in the recognition of the independence of Croatia and Slovenia at the Hawaii International Conference on Arts and Humanities on Jan. 13 in Honolulu. She also served as chair for the session on history.

Michele Smith has joined Niagara University in the newly created position of stewardship and donor relations coordinator in the Office of Institutional Advancement. She will be responsible for donor acknowledgment letters, the scholarship luncheon, and working with the Office of Financial Aid.

A native of Middleport, Michelle formerly worked for seven years in the advancement office at Roberts Wesleyan College. She holds a bachelor’s degree in psychology from Cedarville College in Ohio and a master’s degree in strategic leadership from Roberts Wesleyan.

Preferred Merchant Program: Electronics outlet added

Wired Electronics, located in the Fashion Outlets of Niagara Falls, 1900 Military Road, has been added to Niagara University’s preferred merchant program. Every Wednesday, all NU students, faculty, and staff will receive a 10 percent discount off their total purchase price and 5 percent off of high-definition televisions when showing their ID card.

NU alum Kyle-Lynn Tuttle is the store’s general manager. Wired Electronics offers a wide selection of personal and home electronics, from iPods, MP3 players, DVD recorders, Xbox 360s and gaming accessories, as well as HDTVs that are perfect for dorm life.

For hours and more information, call 716-297-1001. You can view the entire list of NU’s preferred merchants at www.niagara.edu/pmp/.

added that the group is planning to publish its preliminary findings.

Sophomore Joseph Fitzpatrick of Niagara Falls, and juniors Robert Hengesbach of Lyndhurst, Ohio; Tiffany Rockwood of Shaker Heights, Ohio; and Kayleigh Scannell of Lowell, Mass., studied the legacy of housing discrimination in Niagara Falls, N.Y., as part of two classes taught by Dr. Seneca Vaught, assistant professor of African and African American history. Hengesbach, Rockwood and Scannell, students in the Intro to Research class, investigated the historical factors that led to housing discrimination in the city of Niagara Falls. Fitzpatrick interviewed people in the community, producing a short video documentary as part of his Civil Rights Movement class. The two-part project addresses the historical effects of housing discrimination and their continuing contribution to urban decay in Niagara Falls.

The project submitted by senior English major Zachary Mills of Buffalo developed from an essay he wrote for one of his classes. Mills’ paper, which he authored with the guidance of Dr. Paula Kot, associate professor of English, considered the significance of Giovanni’s poisoning in Nathaniel Hawthorne’s “Rappaccini’s Daughter.” Kot noted that they plan to submit the piece for publication in professional journals.

Among the 27 colleges represented at the expo were Adelphi University, Alfred University, Albany College of Pharmacy, Fordham University and Iona College.

“We’re in with a very elite group,” McGlen noted. “It’s a great honor that our students were selected, and it reflects that we are in a prestigious circle in terms of faculty-student research.”

WHEN THE MOON HITS YOUR EYE LIKE A BIG PIZZA PIE — NU hospitality services rolled out a new slate of pizza products that will be offered this semester in Clet Dining Commons. The products, which were taste-tested on Jan. 14, were supplied by Rich Products of Buffalo; however, Sodexho Food Services supplied the recipes. Some of the tasty treats included a Greek salad on flat bread; a turkey bacon and Swiss cheese stromboli; and an apple dessert pizza. Hospitality services also had the Sicilian and Buffalo chicken pizzarinos available for testing. The pizzarino is a smaller version of a stromboli. Brach, regional culinary managers from Rich Products.

Clet Hall to hold culinary celebrations

Clet Dining Hall will keep things warm for students during the month of February with plenty of exciting dining events. Every Wednesday this month will be “Square Pizza Wednesday” and on Thursday, Feb. 7, there will be a Valentine’s Dinner Celebration. Steak and chocolate fondue will be served.

Other tasty celebrations include:

Week of Feb. 11: The heritage and culture of New Orleans

Feb. 12: Chili bar
Feb. 19: All-day Mardi Gras party
Feb. 21: Sushi will be served all day
Feb. 22: Fish fry
Feb. 26: Italian Night, with various pasta dishes served throughout the day
Suzanne Karaszewski, graphic designer in the Office of Communications and Public Relations, has been named Niagara University’s employee of the month for January 2008. She has been with the university since September 2004.

Sue played an integral part in the design of Niagara University’s 150th anniversary edition of the Eagle alumni magazine. This same project was noted in nominations for the award. “This took many hours of overtime on her part, and it looked fabulous,” a nomination said. Also mentioned was a Council for Advancement and Support of Education award she shared for her design, layout and hard work on the publication.

Sue’s supervisor, Lisa McMahon, associate director for publications in the office, stated, “Sue was hired to help with the university’s graphic design needs. In that time, she has worked with all areas of the university to produce a variety of printed materials, and her work has been recognized with regional and national awards. Her cheerful attitude and her desire to please make Sue a pleasure to work with.”

Another nomination stated that whenever an ad is needed for a client, the job gets done. “Sue truly loves her job,” it said. “She is one of the friendliest, most caring people I have ever worked around.”

Niagara University to provide free tax help

Accounting students from Niagara University’s College of Business Administration will again provide free tax assistance to members of the Niagara Falls community this tax season. The program, called Volunteer Income Tax Assistance, is sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service.

“Niagara University has participated in this program for many years,” said Alfonso Oddo, chair of the department of accounting. He noted that members of Beta Alpha Psi, the international honor society for accounting, and the college’s Accounting Society will coordinate the program.

Under the program, NU students prepare and electronically file federal and state tax returns free of charge for elderly and low-income taxpayers in the community.

Starting in mid-February, assistance will be provided at the following locations:

Niagara University, Gallagher Center study lounge, lower level — March 3, 10 and 31; April 7 and 14, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Niagara Falls High School, 4455 Porter Road — Feb. 12 and 26; March 4 and 11; and April 1, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

EveryWoman Opportunity Center, Inc., 1316 Main St. — Feb. 21 and 28 from 3 to 5 p.m.

Highland Community Revitalization Committee, Inc., 1750 Tennessee Ave. — March 13 and April 3 from 3 to 5 p.m.; March 8 and April 5 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

St. John’s AME Federal Credit Union, 917 Garden Ave. — Feb. 23 and March 1 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

No appointments are needed to participate in this free service. For more information, contact the ReNU Niagara COPC office at 716-205-0289.

The responsibility of planning for and responding to campus emergencies falls to two separate teams established under the university’s Emergency and Disaster Plan. The first, the Committee on Crisis Management, is charged with developing and maintaining the emergency plan, updating it as needed. The committee meets at least three times a year to review the overall plan and individual department plans. It also determines what training is required to implement the plan.

The second group, the Crisis Response Team, is comprised of eight appointed staff members who are responsible for implementing the measures needed to respond to any emergency or disaster that may affect the campus.

Dr. Bonnie Rose, executive vice president and vice president for academic affairs, serves as an ex-officio member of each group in her role as the campus’ emergency director.

In addition to Dr. Rose, members of the Committee on Crisis Management are Sheila Hausrath, vice president for student life; Michael Jaszka, vice president for administration; Bernadette Brennen, assistant to the vice president for academic affairs; John Barker, director of campus safety; Mike Konopski, dean of enrollment management; Dr. David Taylor, associate professor of criminal justice and faculty adviser to Border Community SERVICE; Robert Pfeil, director of human resources; Dan Guariglia, director of facility services and the campus’ emergency coordinator; Sister Nora Gatto, D.C., executive director of university mission and ministry; and Stephanie Cole, university counsel.

Members of the Crisis Response Team are Dan Guariglia, in his role as emergency coordinator; John Barker; Chris Ferguson, director of business services; Linus Ormsby, director of communications and public relations; Richard Kernin, director of information technology; Joe Cuda, dean of student affairs; John Spanbauer, director of the Kiernan Center; and Sister Nora.

The role of various team members is described in the university’s emergency plan, which can be found online at: www.niagara.edu/emergencyplan/.

Niagara University welcomes the following individuals who recently joined our community: Jennifer Gabryelski, personal trainer/desk coordinator in the Kiernan Center, and Walter Polka, associate professor of education.

Donald Beagle, the director of library services at Belmont Abbey College in North Carolina, has co-authored a book on the Rev. Abram J. Ryan, C.M., titled “Poet of the Lost Cause.” It will be available for purchase in May through the University of Tennessee Press.

Father Ryan was part of Niagara University’s early history, first as a student, then a faculty member at Our Lady of Angels Seminary. He left Niagara for parish work in Illinois in 1862. Shortly thereafter, he became a chaplain in the Confederate Army.

Flying monkeys, movie monsters, Muppets and wicked witch costumes! These are just a few of the exciting creations that highlighted a backstage Broadway tour in January for 13 NU theater studies majors, five additional NU students, NU costume designer Maureen Stevens and costume technologist Marilyn Deighton. Deighton coordinated this four-day field trip to expose students to the many job opportunities available in design/tech for the theater, film and television industry. The behind-the-scenes visit was so successful that Stevens and Deighton hope to offer the tour for theater studies students every two years.

The trip began with a pizza party arranged by Stevens for the students and NU theater alumni who live and work in the New York City area. Nearly 35 alumni attended, reveling in the chance to catch up with one another and to mingle with and offer advice to the newest generation of NU theater students. Brother Augustine Towey, C.M., director emeritus, joined the festivities, too.

The following day was packed with fascinating behind-the-scenes tours. The group toured Izquerdo Studio, which creates costumes and props for theater, film, television and advertising, including the enormous wings worn by Victoria’s Secret models for TV commercials and magazine ads. The next stop was a 90-minute backstage tour of the Broadway musical “Wicked,” guided by Alyce Gilbert, one of Broadway’s renowned wardrobe supervisors. The group saw a close-up viewing of the scenery and props and toured most of the dressing rooms, learning about the intricately detailed costumes. Next stop, the IATSE (Stagehands’ Union) headquarters where a panel of union members presented a discussion on “Alternative Careers in Theater.” The day was capped off with a performance of “Wicked,” a fantastic “untold story” about the witches of Oz.

On the third day, the group toured Carelli Costumes, one of the major costume houses in New York. The students were able to see some of the costumes under construction for the Metropolitan Opera, the Broadway musical “Young Frankenstein,” and a new musical scheduled to open in Japan. Free time was built in for the students to attend matinee and evening performances or to explore the city.

For several of the university’s design/tech students who had grown up watching “Sesame Street” and “Fraggle Rock,” it was thrilling to tour the Jim Henson Co. Studio on the last day of the trip, while the other students took dance classes or shopped. At the Jim Henson Studio in the “Big Apple” (one of three Jim Henson Co. Studios in the United States), the students were able to see some of the archival characters Henson created, such as “Oscar the Grouch” and “Elmo.” They also observed some of the puppet creators working on several new Muppet characters.

The final stop for the group was CBS Studios, where Doug Towey, Brother Augustine’s sibling, arranged for a studio tour. The students visited the CBS News studio where two of the directors explained what their fast-paced jobs entailed. Next, the group visited the wardrobe room where contemporary fashions for several on-air personalities are stored. A network wardrobe supervisor explained the scope of her job, as did Towey, who provided a fun, informative tour where he produces the CBS Sports show.
University elections scheduled

Elections will be held for the Academic Senate, the Committee on Promotion and Tenure, the Hearing Committee, the Committee on Investigation and Advice and the Sabbatical Leave Review Committee from Feb. 22-29. For declarations of intent to stand for election for the Senate or any of the other committees, please contact Linda Coram at extension 8342. Declarations must be submitted by Feb. 11.

Be part of the decision-making process on campus! Become a senator or part of an important university committee. We encourage you to talk to one of the following senators about his or her experience: Dr. Bonnie Rose, Dr. Michael Barnwell, Dr. Brian Bennett, Bernadette Brennen, Elizabeth Broomfield, Dr. Marlo Brown, Dr. Debra Colley, Dr. Morgan Conway, Dr. Wendy Duignan, Father Steve Denig, Dr. Phil Scherer, Dr. Kathy Ho, Dr. Barbara Iannarelli, Patricia Kinner, Antonia Knight, Dr. Tim Ireland, Dr. James McCutcheon, Dr. Nancy McGlen, Dr. Jacqueline Murphy, Dr. Donna Kester Phillips, Dr. Gary Praetzel, Dr. Ronny Priefer, Dr. Mary Schreiner, Dr. Steven L. Siegel, Dr. Donna Thompson, Dr. Suzanne Wagner, Dr. Robin Wilber, Michelle Clements, Emily Smaldino, and Rafael Venturini.

Kiernan Korner

The following programs are available for the spring 2008 semester. Remember that the cost of a full-time employee membership is only $100, and that Flex Fit cards may be used as payment for gym memberships.

Group Fitness Classes

Get ready for spring break by attending one of the many group fitness classes available. Some of the new and exciting classes include Pilates, the brick, water aerobics, and concentration and meditation. The Kiernan Center would like to thank the Office of Human Resources for sponsoring the afternoon Pilates classes. Click on the following link for a complete group fitness schedule: www.niagara.edu/kiernancenter/aerobics-info.htm.

Intramurals

Would you like to reach out and interact with students in a friendly, informal setting? Get some friends and colleagues together and register a team for an intramural league. Click on the following link for more information: www.niagara.edu/kiernancenter/intramural-info.htm.

Wellness Programs

The Kiernan Center is proud to introduce its new personal trainer, Jenni Gabryelski. Jenni is an AFAA-certified trainer and is here to help devise personal workout routines for members. In addition, the KC will also be offering open-water canoeing lessons, “Late Night at the KC” on Thursday nights, and the “Reach the Beach” challenge. Click on the following link for more information: www.niagara.edu/kiernancenter/wellness-info.htm.

Workshops on nonprofit management to be offered

Niagara University’s Office of Continuing and Community Education and ReNU Niagara Community Outreach Partnership Center, in partnership with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, will provide a series of free, professional workshops on nonprofit management from 4 to 8:30 p.m. in Dunleavy Hall, Room 127, beginning March 18.

The sessions are designed specifically for nonprofit agency, staff and board members; local residents; and faith-based groups. All workshops are presented by a HUD representative with comprehensive expertise in topic areas.

Preregistration is required and space is limited. For more information, call 716-286-8181, or log on to www.niagara.edu/cce.
Dwyer Arena will be the place to be in mid-March, as College Hockey America will hold the 2008 men’s and women’s conference tournaments there March 7-8 (women) and 14-16 (men).

“The CHA is pleased and proud to bring Division I championship collegiate hockey to Niagara University,” CHA commissioner R.H. “Bob” Peters said.

For the women, the tournament kicks off on March 7 at 3 p.m. with the number one seed facing off against the number four seed. At 7 p.m., the second seeded team takes on the third. On March 8, the CHA women’s championship will be center stage at Dwyer.

The men drop the puck on March 14 at 7 p.m. with the fourth seed facing the fifth seed. The action continues at 2 p.m. on March 15 with the number one seed facing the 4/5 seed winner; the second and third seeds play at 7 p.m. the same night.

The men’s championship game will take place at 2 p.m. on March 16. CSTV will televise the final live.

“We are very proud of our facilities and that in itself assures a good experience for all the teams,” Niagara men’s head coach Dave Burkholder said. “With our location and the support of our loyal fans, hockey fans in general from Western New York and Southern Ontario, I am assuring a weekend the CHA and all its members will be very proud of.”

NU freshman forward Venla Heikkila played for the Finnish National Team that participated at the 2008 Women’s Air Canada Cup in Germany. The Finnish team earned the silver medal after dropping a hard fought gold medal game to Canada, 7-5.

Venla, from Tampere, Finland, played in all four games and helped to lead Finland to a 3-1 overall record. She recorded three goals and four assists in four games, finishing fourth among all scorers with seven points. Her third goal of the tournament gave Finland a 1-0 lead early in the gold medal game against Canada.

“It’s great to see she was such a success,” stated Niagara University head women’s hockey coach Margot Page. “It’s no surprise with her skill-set, speed and attitude that she does well at any level. We are proud of the way that she represented Niagara University and Finland.”

The 2008 Women’s Air Canada Cup featured the best hockey talent from six nations, including Finland, Canada, Russia, Germany, Sweden and Switzerland.

Venla had a goal and an assist as Finland defeated Sweden, 5-0 and an assist in their triumph over Switzerland, 4-1. Finland then defeated Russia 7-2, as Venila notched a goal and an assist.

The freshman forward has also been quite the force for the Purple Eagles, as she is tied for third in points with 12. Venla is second on the team in goal-scoring with five tallies and third on the team in assists with seven. She was named the College Hockey of America Rookie of the Week for the week of Oct. 22 and is ranked 13th in the conference in points. She is currently fourth in the CHA in freshman scoring.
NU baseball hosts fundamentals school

Learn the fundamentals.

If you played sports at any point in life, chances are you’ve heard this from a coach or a parent. Niagara University baseball coach Chris Chernisky was driving home the same lesson during a winter offensive and defense fundamentals camp, held on Sundays in late January until early February.

The sessions, held at the Kiernan Center, are a chance for children from grades 1 through 12 to learn the same techniques that the Purple Eagles emphasize in their preparations for games.

“We’ve run one- and two-day camps before,” said Chernisky, “but we thought a longer camp was the way to go this time around.” He said the program expects nearly 140 kids, with ages ranging from 9 to 13.

Offensively, participants will get instruction on hitting, bunting and bat control; defensively, students will learn proper throwing and catching techniques. “We want to provide them with the information to build on for becoming successful,” Chernisky noted. “You don’t assume everyone knows the basics.”

Part of helping the kids succeed is making sure they continue developing their baseball skills. “We lose a lot of players between the ages of 13 and 15 years old,” Chernisky said. The ultimate goal is that this longer camp will help keep players in baseball past the age of 13.

“We want to provide an atmosphere where players want to learn and develop,” he added. “If we can make it fun for them and improve their skills, the likelihood of that group wanting to play on will be much greater.”

Niagara baseball assistant coaches Devin McIntosh and Rob McCoy will be on hand to impart their knowledge. NU players will also be in attendance to offer assistance. “Our players and coaches know just how important this is (to kids), and we want to give them the best advice possible,” said Chernisky.

Chernisky advises young players to get out and play as much as they can. But, parents beware: It will involve plenty of detergent to clean those clothes. “Just go out there and get dirty,” he said. “Go back to the sandlot-type days and play hard.”

He stressed, however, that the most important trait to develop is a good work ethic.

With remarkable attendance, Chernisky has decided to hold another camp again next year. And why not? It is not too far-fetched to believe that one or more of the campers could be Purple Eagles one day. That would make Chernisky one happy camper.

Diamond notes

• Coach Chernisky is planning on running two baseball camps this summer. One will be a youth camp; the other is a specialty camp for pitchers and catchers.

• Senior outfielder Tim Alberts has been named to the 2008 Brooks Wallace Player-of-the-Year Award Watch List by the College Baseball Foundation. The award is presented to the nation’s top collegiate baseball player in conjunction with the College Baseball Hall of Fame’s annual induction festivities.

Tim, from Baldwinsville, held the longest hitting streak in the nation at 35 games. The streak began during the 2006 season and ended in March of last year. He batted .451 during the run, with 60 hits and 18 multiple-hit contests. The 35-game run is the best in Niagara and MAAC history.

Tim led the Purple Eagles in eight offensive categories while earning First-Team All-MAAC honors as a junior. He finished third in the conference with a .379 batting average and ranked second with 66 hits and 42 RBIs.

The 2008 Wallace award banquet will be held July 3 at the United Spirit Arena on the campus of Texas Tech University.
